Natural stone is by nature quite porous and often need to be sealed to prevent staining whereas glazed tiles are very low maintenance, require a daily sweep and mopping only if required. All the beauty without the work.

We strive to provide consumers with one of the widest ranges of tiles available, offering many variations in colour, material, size, design, and application.

Ceramic materials are famed for their durability, and our manufacturing processes are designed to improve this quality even further. The high temperature of our firings makes our ceramic tiles extremely strong and impervious to penetration by liquids, dirt and staining agents, giving them a marked advantage over natural materials like wood and stone.

Our tiles contain no harmful chemicals or Volatile Organic Compounds, making them safe for any domestic or commercial setting. This is particularly effective in maintaining high levels of hygiene and preventing the formation of mould in rooms with high levels of humidity. Certain SWT Tile ranges also include textured options for added slip resistance in wet and outdoor areas.

In this design classic sophistication meets modern minimalism. This stylish design gives your space a timeless elegance.

Whether polished or glazed, porcelain tiles are associated with creating elegant spaces. The fact that they are also durable, versatile and low maintenance are part of what make porcelain tiles a beautiful choice for both domestic and commercial spaces.

Our tiles are built for living, designed to withstand the wear and tear that comes with a busy household or a high-traffic public space.

As a natural product, natural stone tiles can be irregular in shape and size which may be difficult to work with particularly when trying to achieve a certain effect. Tiles, however, are uniform in both shape and size, making them easy to install. With modern manufacturing techniques, it is possible to perfectly mimic the textures and colours of natural stone, for a realistic pattern without these variations.

The manufacturing process of a porcelain tile extracts most of the water out of the tile, leaving it more stain- and water-resistant, and less likely to crack. Porcelain tiles are therefore usually recommended for tiling floors, but can also be used on walls, to tile fountains (indoor or outdoor), countertops and back-splashes. Porcelain tiles will also weather the changing seasons making them well-suited for use outdoors or when tiling from indoor to outdoor.

They say first impressions are lasting ones. This is true for people but can also be equally important to businesses too. Many customers see your office space, showroom or storefront before they actually deal with you or your team members, so physical space presentation is important. Décor needs to represent your organisation appropriately.
